LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We the class of '53
Are leaving, other work as you can see.
Here we make our very last will,
But memories of Burnsville will linger still.

ARTICLE I

To Mr. Kale, who helped us all
Through trying moments on him we call.
We leave to him appreciation and thanks
For looking over our crazy pranks.

ARTICLE II

For our sponsor, Mrs. Simpson,
We haven't the money to buy a big gift.
A word of gratitude we now give you,
For patience, encouragement, and understanding too.

ARTICLE III

To the class of '54
We will to you the winning score.

Irene Kiker wills to Minnie Neal Lee her wit,
May she use it as she sees fit.

To Shirley Thomas, Macey leaves her money,
Don't ever think the tresurer's job is funny.

To Eddie Lee, Linus leaves his looks,
Don't let it take you from your books.

Ned Parker leaves to his little brother Bob,
His ball-playing ability,
May it not make him a snob.

To Mary Hinson, Peggy Edwards leaves her pranks,
Just be sure they stay in the upper ranks.

To Ben Witherspoon, Ned Beachum leaves his big mouth,
Don't let it get you in the dog house.

To Billy Thomas, Bruce wills his brains,
So he can tell his class a few things.

Graham Kiker wills his talent to sing,
To anyone who wants to give it a fling.

To Royal Landcaster, Frances leaves her love,
Don't let it take you to the wash-tub.

H. C. Thomas wills the hall pass he uses,
To Winfred Sikes who makes excuses.

Peggy Turner wills her neatness of clothes,
To Betty Lou Tucker from her head to her toes.

To Nadine Tucker, Alice Edwards wills her horses,
And all the books which are their sources.

Jack Turner leaves his freckles to Billy Ross,
With those bright things you'll never get lost.

To Betty Lee Russell, Ruby wills her typing,
Maybe this will help you in your piping.

To R. W. Griffin, Billy Taylor wills his remarks,
Don't think you're quite as smart.

Cecil Russell and his quiet ways
Go to Olin, we hope it stays.

Wallace Turner wills his wininng ways,
To all the junior girls, whom he does amaze.

W. C. Gaddy wills his chemistry skill,
To Edwin Thomas who'll fill the bill.

Herbert Taylor wills his listening ears,
To Robert Haward for the coming year.

John Taylor wills his little car, to Hugh Thompson,
To help him go near and far.

C. W. Brewer wills his funny ways,
To Roger Baucom, so he will have happier days.

Wilson leaves his ability to finish school early,
To anyone whose hair is curly.

Ramelle wills her winning smile,
To anyone who was once a child.

Sue Thomas wills to the junior class her likeable ways,
So that they may have better days.

ARTICLE V.

We now have completed our very last will
And stamped it with a Burnsville High School seal.
We place it here for all to see,
On May 14, 1953, A. D.

SUE THOMAS

Ramelle—I caught my boy friend flirting.
Alice—That's the way I caught mine, too.

Peggy Edwards—was in town looking up and down the parking places.
Police—What are you looking for?
Peggy—A parking place.
Police—Where is your car?
Peggy—In the parking place.

PROPHECY

As I sat watching the sun set with its myriad of hues and colors giving a silver lining to a cloud or two, I pondered the future of our class.

"The sun's rims dips; the stars rush out."

We were a constellation of stars for a year. True, sometimes the winds blew, clouds rolled, thunder roared and lightning flashed. Then the skies cleared and we were still there—our lights still shining.

Magically a telescope appeared near my hand. Adjusting it I could see ten years hence. Yes, they are the same twenty-five stars of my class of 1953. With eyes adjusted to the light, I beheld a panorma of my class.

Linus Godwin, our president, was holding a Hollywood award he had just received for the greatest "ladies man" in the movie colony.

Wilson Turner was thanking the people, a great crowd, for electing him Mayor of Burnsville. Seated behind him and directing his every move was his red-headed wife.

Ruby Griffin was opening the door of a dress shop in Oakboro with her name on the window. She wore the striking attire of a widow.

Ramelle Honeycutt had dyed her hair black. You remember she always wanted it black in school. She was in the advertising department of Cannon Mills.

Peggy Turner has realized her ambition of becoming a well-known girls' basketball coach. There she was in the Burnsville Gym.

W. C. Gaddy labored furiously on his fine Anson County farm that he might get off for a honey-moon in a few days.

Alice Edwards has built a little red school house near her home in Burnsville, where she is surrounded by twenty-five kindergarten kiddies.

John Taylor has made a fortune with a fool-proof method of perpetual motion he invented for a T Model.

Bruce Ross was Agriculture Teacher at Burnsville. At the instant, I saw Jack Turner threatening to sue him for taking away his veterinary practice on hogs.

Frances Edwards walked sedately down the corridor of Presbyterian Hospital, Charlotte, as head-nurse.

Graham Kiker and H. C. Thomas were still co-workers. Graham had invented a pep pill and was using H. C. as his guinea pig.

Wallace Turner had hung out his shingle as a psychiatrist and had become successful by giving his patients laughing gas.

Peggy Edwards was the proud president of the North Carolina Society of Cosmetics. Her [illegible]ist was getting rid of double-chins.

[illegible]ebody was calling Billy Taylor to unstop a kitchen sink. He had become a first-rate

[illegible]erbert Taylor looked up from the Sports page of the Charlotte Observer. He was in the [illegible] Carolina Senate, Anson County's Chair. Our district had bestowed its highest honor on [illegible]bert.

Cecil Allen was on his way to Hollywood to teach Walt Disney stars his contagious laugh.

Sue Thomas was in Polkton in order to keep a keen outlook on the folks of that town.

Ned Beachum stood under a sign: Beachum and Brewer, Undertakers. As C. W. walked up, [illegible]ed laughingly said, "We undertake anything but the dead—our motto. Seen my girl today, [illegible]artner"?

Cecil Russell stood behind a pulpit and preached to a great throng of people. I couldn't hear [illegible]but the audience was impressed.

Irene Kiker was a doctor. As she went from patient to patient, I could see that she loved [illegible]and petted them as she did her classmates.

Seated at the desk in the principal's office at Burnsville High was Ned Parker. Listening [illegible]I did not hear the old familiar giggles or rushing feet in and out of the building. Then some one [illegible]tipped past and two students, meeting in the hall, whispered to each other. Truly, a new era [illegible]at our dear alma mater under the direction of our classmate.

Completing our roll, I was proud that each of our class had kept his star shining on a world in turmoil. In 1953 we shone in the senior orbit but in 1963 we were shining each in our own right.

MACEY DEAN WILLIAMS

CLASS GRUMBLER

Linus thought his truck was fast,
Until Jack shattered the glass.

Alice acts mighty proud,
She floats around like she's on a cloud.

Cecil Russell is always so quiet,
If anyone bothered Flossie, he would put up a fight.

H. C. is always saying something smart,
On his report card, he needs higher marks.

Irene likes to have her own way,
But she usually does what others say

Bruce is so nice,
He can't date the same girl twice.

With Royal, Frances thought she was rating,
Until he started skating.

Cecil Allen is so fast,
But he is usually late to class.

Sue is always talking about Bert,
She doesn't like for anyone to call him a flirt.

Ned Parker who reminds me of a preacher,
Is going to State College to be a teacher.

Ned Beachum has a grin on his face like a wren,
But I don't think they're any kin.

John always will regret the day,
He sold his Model A.

The typist in our class is C. W. Brewer,
He would be fine, if his mistakes were fewer.

Wilson and Wallace dates a different girl every night,
They never seem to find one just right.

Billy is such a big bluff,
But he's really not so rough.

W. C. is always playing pranks on the girls,
And keeps them in whirls.

Ramelle talks like a baby,
Someday she'll have one of her own, maybe.

Peggy and Jerry make a perfect pair,
To say something bad about them, I wouldn't dare.

Herbert thought he was sneaking,
Until Ruby caught him peeking.

Macey is always so quiet,
I wonder how she gets the answers right.

Graham acts like a two year old,
He never does anything he's told.

I don't know what's going to happen to the class of '53,
It certainly is a problem to me.

PEGGY TURNER, Class Grumbler

Cecil Russell—I got a brother who has a wooden leg.
Billy—That's nothing I got a girl friend who has a cedar chest.

Mrs. Dockery—Who knows what a noun is?
Jack—Why do all the teacher's ask us questions they don't know themselves

Ned Parker—May I have your daughter for my wife, Mrs. Walters?
Mrs. Walters—Bring your wife around sometimes and let me look at her.

GIFTORIAN

Frances Edwards—I give this pair of skates to remind you of the many times Royal has been skating.

Linus Godwin—I give you this truck to remind you of Glenn's.

Irene Kiker—I give you this one-seated car so you may never have to sit in the back.

W. C. Gaddy—I give you this little knife to remind you of Robert's.

Peggy Edwards—I give you this diamond to remind you of the one you are waiting for.

Ruby Griffin—I give you this boy to remind you of Junior Taylor.

Jack Turner—I give you this pick-up to replace the one you wrecked.

Billy Taylor—I give you this little bull dog to remind you of the times you have bluffed your way around.

Bruce Ross—I give you this watch to remind you of the many times you have been late for school.

Cecil Russell—I give you this box of no-sleep pills to use after your date with Flossie.

Herert Taylor—I give you this umbrella so that your Toni won't wash out.

Wilson Turner—I give you this bar of Mitchum and Tucker candy to remind you of Lib.

Cecil Allen—I give you this little doll to remind you of Becky.

Macey Deane Williams—I give you this little car to remind you of the many rides you and Hugh have taken.

Ned Beachum—I give you this wave-clamp to keep your waves in place.

Ned Parker—I give you this tire to remind you of the many flats you have had.

C. W. Brewer—I give you this brush to keep your white-walls clean when you go to see Miss Turner.

Alice Edwards—I give you this wagon to carry your books around in.

Peggy Turner—I give you this telescope so Mr. Brewer may never be out of your sight.

Wallace Turner—I give you this pack of chewing-gum to give to the girls who always ask you for it.

H. C. Thomas—I give you this needle and thread so you can sew your own pants up from now on.

Ramelle Honeycutt—I give you this little soldier to remind you of Brice.

Graham Kiker—Please accept this little jug to remind you of the many you have emptied.
